ANOTHER CHAPTER IS WRITTEN IN CASE TO OUST SUPERVISOR

Depositions Are Taken in Ely
Case Before Notary
Public

NOW GOES TO COURT

Action Brought by Several Citizens of Solebury
Township

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 11—Another chapter in the community squabble in Solebury township to have William L. Ely ousted as a member of the Board of Road Supervisors of that township was written yesterday before J. Kirk Leatherman, notary public, when depositions were taken in behalf of Mr. Ely.

The case will now be argued in court before Judge Hiram H. Keller at some future date for disposition.

Action was brought against Ely by several citizens of Solebury township, members of a good roads association, who alleged that Ely did not conduct his office in an efficient manner and that he awarded contracts to haul stone at an excessive price when a cheaper bid could have been secured.

Yesterday the side of the respondent was presented and a large number of prominent men and women of New Hope and Solebury came to the defense of Mr. Ely. The petitioners against Mr. Ely are principally Colonel George VanOrden and R. Moore Price, of New Hope.

Constable Daniel Hendricks, of Solebury, who is also tax collector, testified that he has attended meetings, Colonel VanOrden, Dr. John A. Hawkins and R. Moore Price showed a rather nasty attitude toward Mr. Ely.

"The roads of our township however are better today than they ever were," Mr. Hendricks testified. "Mr. Ely's reputation for honesty and diligence in the performance of his duties has always been very good."

Under cross-examination Constable Hendricks admitted that he did hear that Mr. Ely was once arrested on a charge of embezzlement, but he added that he knew the case had never gone as far as the county court as yet.

Robert Isler, of New Hope, an automobile salesman, stated that he has attended the supervisor meetings for ten years and that he has considered the conduct of Colonel VanOrden, R. Moore Price and others toward Mr. Ely and "unorderly."

"Those fellows have more to say about things than the supervisors," declared Mr. Isler. "Mr. Ely's reputation is good."

Similar testimony was offered by John Johnson, of New Hope, who stated that the roads so far as Mr. Ely had worked on them were very good in Solebury township. He also stated that he is acquainted with the prices of hauling stone and he said that he would not under any conditions haul stone for less than 75 cents a ton if he cared to make a living at it. ## WRESTLING MATCHES ENJOYED BY FATHERS

Program Eclipses Anything of Sporting Nature Ever
Held Here

LARGE GROUP ATTENDS

Bristol has been a sporting center for many years, and many athletic events have been held, but the exhibition of scientific wrestling given at the meeting of the Fathers' Association last evening, eclipsed anything of a sporting character, the town has ever seen.

The event was unusual, because of the prominence of the contestants. One was Fred Coppers, light heavyweight champion of Belgium, and the other Elmer Johnsen, a Norwegian, and former light heavyweight champion of the world. Both men were in the pink of condition, and the exhibition which they gave was equal to those seen at the Arena in Philadelphia.

The head and body scissors, strangle hold, and every other hold used in wrestling was exhibited during the match. For thirty minutes the contestants struggled for supremacy, and it was not until the Norwegian succeeded in turning his contestant upside down, with his head on the floor, which position he maintained until he became groggy, that either participant showed any advantage. The match was won by Johansen in 33 minutes.

The members of the Fathers' Association were overjoyed at the exhibition and gave expression to their feelings, by loud and prolonged applause, when the match was ended. The consensus of opinion was that for a scientific exhibition of wrestling, nothing like it has ever been seen in the town, and it will be a long time before anything to compare with it, will be seen again.

Previous to the match, several exhibition boxing bouts were pulled off. The first bout was between "Buller" and "Zip." The contestants in the second bout were "Kid" Quiet and Otto Straffe, and the third, John Straffe and Patsy Straffe. The bouts were much enjoyed, and all present were impressed with the skill exhibited by John Straffe, who arranged the boxing exhibition. A song by John Forty was much appreciated.

The meeting was largely attended. The president, Stanford K. Runyan, announced that as a result of the membership drive, which closed last night, the membership had now reached a total of 338 members in good standing. At the conclusion, a lunch consisting of coffee and doughnuts, was served in the cafeteria.

More Glass Is Broken At Hulmeville; Third Case

HULMEVILLE, Apr. 11—Four large panes of glass were broken in the residence of Horace Prickett, here early this morning. The panes each measure five by 2½ feet, and are located on the porch of the Prickett home.

Some members of the family heard the crash of glass just as an automobile halted in front of the residence at 3 a. m.

This is the third home in which glass has been broken during the past few weeks, since the commencement of trouble at the plant of the Hulmeville Hosiery Company.

BURGESS ANDERSON URGES RESIDENTS HERE TO CO-OPERATE IN CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN; SLOGAN, "REMOVE RUBBISH AND DEBRIS FROM PREMISES"

Inspection Being Conducted by Department of Public Safety
So As to Eliminate Fire and Disease Hazards—Recommendations Made Must Be Complied With or Fines Are To Be Imposed—Many Cellars and Attics Here Are Stored With Discarded Material.

Clean-Up Week throughout Pennsylvania opens Monday and every resident in every community throughout the length and breadth of the Keystone State is requested to co-operate in making the campaign a complete success.

The week has been designated by the State Departments of Health, Welfare, Forests and Waters and the Bureau of Fire Protection, State Police, as Clean-Up Week. It is an annual custom which has resulted in developing an interest in State wide sanitation and the removal of nuisances and fire hazards.

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson of Bristol has endorsed the movement and has instructed the Department of Public Safety to co-operate to the fullest extent.

During the Clean-Up Week period many articles of materials discarded as useless, such as old furniture, clothing, newspapers, magazines, probably stored away in cellar or attic should be removed and destroyed, thereby eliminating a most decided fire menace.

The Bristol Department of Public Safety is making a careful inspection of every property in Bristol. Some of the conditions found have been far from satisfactory. A detailed record is being kept of each inspection and recommendations are being made where found necessary. Fines are to be imposed if these recommendations are not complied with.

Here is the program which is to be followed:

Monday, April 14th—Highway Day—All sidewalks and streets should be cleaned, gutters cleared, ditches opened and sewers flushed.

Tuesday, April 15th—Forestry Day—All inflammable material in the neighborhood of houses and cabins, gardens and fields and along trails and roads should be removed. This applies particularly to brush, branches and briars. It is suggested that one of the most efficient methods of disposition is by burning. However, in this connection, caution is urged so that at all times the fire is under complete control.

FOUR INJURED AS TRUCK IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Gasoline Ignited by Lighted
Match Held by One While
Other Filled the Tank

TOTS CAUGHT IN TRUCK

ANDALUSIA, Apr. 11—Four were injured and a light delivery truck was totally destroyed last night on the Bristol Pike near a public school house.

William Grimshaw, 2928 B Street, Philadelphia. Burned about the limbs from the hips to the ankles. Also sustained burns about the hands and face.

Jack Grimshaw, 10, 2928 B Street, Philadelphia. Burns about the nose and left hand.

Norman Wolsdenholme, 5029 Erringer Place, Philadelphia. Middle finger of right hand burned.

Sarah Hadfield, 5943 Roosevelt Boulevard, Philadelphia. Sustained bruise about the head as she fell from the rear of truck in effort to escape the flames.

The group were returning to Philadelphia in the light delivery truck owned by Elijah Hadfield, 5943 Roosevelt Boulevard, and the gasoline ran low when they reached the school house here. It was about 10 o'clock and William Grimshaw and Wolsdenholme went for "gas" and returned with a can. Wolsdenholme held a lighted match while Grimshaw poured the gasoline into the tank which was located at the front of the truck. The "gas" ignited and flames quickly enveloped the machine.

Jack Grimshaw and Sarah Hadfield, both children, were in the rear of the car which was a closed body. They attempted to escape and Jack Grimshaw broke the glass in the doors and forced the doors open so that he and the little girl could get out.

The Hadfield child, in her excitement, fell from the truck and bruised her head considerably on the concrete roadway.

All of the injured were treated at the Harriman Hospital, Bristol, where they were taken by passing motorists.

IDENTIFY MAN KILLED ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Graham W. Brogan, of Maryland, Instantly Killed At Street Road

WIFE SERIOUSLY HURT

Graham W. Brogan, 38 years old, advertising agent, of Joppa Road, Towson, Md., was instantly killed yesterday afternoon and his wife was seriously injured when their automobile crashed into another machine at the Lincoln Highway and Street Road, a few miles below Langhorne. Graham's death was due to a fractured skull.

The woman, Mrs. Marion Brogan, is in the Frankford Hospital suffering from contusions and probable internal injuries. Her condition is said to be serious.

Brogan's body was taken to the morgue of Roscoe L. Horner, Langhorne. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brogan, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., were notified of his death and will go to Langhorne to make arrangements for the funeral. The Brogans' two children, 9 and 12 years old, respectively, are with relatives in Maryland.

Brogan and his wife had been visiting the former's parents and were on their way home when the tragedy occurred. He was driving along the highway when Theodore Miller, of Edgely, drove from the Street Road onto the highway. Miller told Trooper Coons, of the Langhorne State Highway Patrol, that he came to a stop at a stop-street sign and that when he started to cross the highway Brogan's car crashed into his. Brogan's machine turned over twice and he and his wife were tossed into the road. Miller escaped injury. Both machines were badly damaged.

Coroner W. Furman Young, of Bristol, viewed the body and had it taken to the morgue.

Brogan was a prominent resident of Maryland and had been engaged in the advertising business for some time. In his pocket was found a private airplane pilot's license.

Miller was arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Keating at Langhorne and held under $1,000 bail to await a coroner's inquest.

Passengers and Crew Are Rescued As Vessel Sinks

LONDON, Apr. 11—(INS)—Eighty passengers and a crew of fifty were rescued when the British liner City of Peking struck a rock and sank off the southern coast of Korea, according to dispatches to the evening newspapers today.

The vessel sank near Shiresima Island a short while after a gaping hole was torn in her hull by the jagged rock. Fishermen on the island saw the City of Peking in distress and immediately put out to her aid. All aboard were taken off in safety by the fishing boats.

The City of Peking, a steel vessel of 6,960 tons, is a freighter but also carried passengers.

REV. FR. WOLFER TELLS OF INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Relates Routine and Recreational Followings To Rotary Club

BOYS ARE PROGRESSING

"Boys, in Relation To Institutional Work," was the subject of the Rev. Father Wolfer, St. Francis Industrial School, Edgely, who yesterday was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club.

Father Wolfer is chaplain at the Edgely school and as such comes into contact with 216 inmates and thus learns to know much of their character and much of their traits and habits.

The speaker contended that on the average the inmate of an orphan asylum is just about the same as the boy found in the average home. "Some authors write stories in newspapers and magazines," said the speaker, "in which they complain about the deadly monotony of institutional life."

Here Father Wolfer gave in detail what the routine of the average individual is each day and also that of the boy in the institution such as is conducted at Edgely.

"Don't you get up in the morning, eat your breakfast, go to work; return for dinner in the evening and after a little recreation go to bed?"

"Well, that is what the boy in the institution does."

"Everyone of the 256 goes to bed at eight o'clock at night and five minutes later you can walk through the corridors and you will find them all sound asleep."

The speaker then stated that the boys at Edgely, have their shops and work benches, get good, plain food, and have their recreation. Movies are given every Wednesday night at 7.15. The boys play baseball, have their own band, shower baths and swimming pool. They are educated up to the eighth grade and also in commercial subjects. There is no homesickness, he said.

"Of course, they are orphans, but they have relatives."

The speaker cited the fact that Babe Ruth and "Al" Jolson were reared in an industrial school—St. Mary's, Baltimore, an institution similar to St. Francis at Edgely and operated and maintained by the same order.

"I admit," said the speaker, "that it is better to raise the boy in the individual home but show me 256 homes which will take these boys? If you can do that then our school will close."

The boys are between 12 and 16 years and the great principle followed in their management is the use of common sense. "Cruelties do happen and are perpetrated in some institutions. They are also occurring in homes," it was contended by Father Wolfer.

The cost of maintaining St. Francis was between $100,000 and $110,000 annually. It was built by the Morrisells and endowed by them.

ONE APPREHENDED WAS OPERATING CAR WITHOUT OWNER'S CONSENT, OR LICENSE; CAR TURNS OVER TWICE IN BRIDGE CRASH

Driver Gives Name of Cornelius Breslin, 626 Race Street, Bristol—Starts Across Field Afoot After Accident
But Officer Betts Apprehends Him

A Bristol police officer yesterday afternoon gave chase and succeeded in capturing an automobile driver who was operating the car of another individual without a license and without the consent of the owner. The officer, commanding a passing motor, stood upon the running board, constantly sounding his whistle and finally firing half a dozen shots into the air in an effort to halt the fleeing driver, apparently crazed by rum and in a frantic effort to elude capture. After a six-mile chase at a 60-mile an hour speed, the operator of the car crashed into a guard rail along a ditch, upon which the car hung precariously after turning over twice. The driver crawled out and started afoot across fields, only to be caught by the guardian of the law.

It was a chase which would make a fitting subject for a movie thriller that Officer Betts engaged in, but he got his man. The driver gave the name of Cornelius Breslin, 626 Race street, Bristol.

WARNER CO. AWARDED WILMINGTON CONTRACT

Penn's Manor Sand to Be Used in Building of Large Dam at Wilmington

TO USE MOTOR TRUCKS

The contract calls for a total of 209,900 tons and is the largest of its kind ever placed in the State.

Deliveries will begin early in May and are to be maintained at the rate of 1,000 tons a day. Under the provisions of the contract the company will make delivery direct to the dam site which is more than five miles from the Warner docks at tide-water. ## Dr. Joseph Manuel Will Be Guest Speaker at Edgely

The special guest preacher at the regular Lenten service for this evening at St. Paul's Chapel, Edgely, will be the Rev. Dr. Joseph Manuel, many years rector of St. Luke's Church, Kensington, Philadelphia, and now resident chaplain of the Episcopal Hospital.

Service begins promptly at eight o'clock and lasts one hour.

An interesting message and singing by the vested choir and a cordial welcome for all will mark this service.

It was about mid-afternoon when Officer Betts, while patrolling along Pond street, just above the intersection of Wilson avenue, noticed the expression upon the face of a driver of a passing sedan. It struck the officer that the driver of that car was under the influence of liquor and so he blew his whistle to halt. No attention was paid to the whistle by the driver who continued up the highway toward Trenton. Again and again the officer blew. No result.

A passing motorist was halted and instructed by Betts to turn his car around and go in pursuit of the fleeing driver who by this time was increasing his speed. Betts stood upon the running board of the pursuit car blowing his whistle for the driver to stop. Still no attention and then the officer brought his pistol into play and the gun barked once, twice, three, four, five and for the sixth time. It was being fired into the air but the constant barking failed to intimidate the drink-crazed driver.

Thus the chase continued along the highway as other drivers crowded to the roadside and gave the pursued and the pursuer plenty of room to stage their little game.

As Edgely was reached the car bearing Officer Betts came almost alongside of the fugitive but just then Breslin must have bore down on the accelerator because his machine took on a new lease of life and leaped forward, leaving the officer still in the rear.

Through the streets of Tullytown continued the breath-taking race until the fugitive reached the intersection with the Bordentown Road. The fugitive turned to his left and drove off the Bordentown Road at his reckless speed until he lost control of the car and after turning over twice it hung partly suspended upon a guard rail beside a ditch.

Still daunted Breslin crawled out and started for the open field but Officer Betts was at his heels and grabbed his man.

Breslin showed some fight but was quickly calmed and brought back here to police headquarters. He was examined by a physician and pronounced under the influence of liquor.

Breslin did not have a license and the car he was operating belonged to Neal Dugan, Newportville. Shortly after the accident Dugan told the police he did not know Breslin had his car and had not given him permission to operate it.

Breslin was given a hearing here this morning before Justice Guy. He was charged with operating a car without the consent of the owner and without a license. He was sentenced to pay $13.50 on the charge of driving without a license and he was held in $500 bail for court on the charge of operating a car without the consent of the owner.

PATIENCE

Lack of patience ruins more great enterprises than lack of ideals, or lack of knowledge, or even lack of energy. Impatience begets hopelessness, driving men alternately to ill-considered activity or deadening apathy. We fail and blame the conditions in which we live, the difficulties of our own temperaments, when the true secret of our distressing ineffectiveness is impatience.

It may be doubted whether many of us recognize what patience really is. We mistake its character and office. We may easily content it as being merely passive, quiescent and submissive.

Even Shakespeare blundered when he attempted to describe it. Rarely does he show less insight than when he pictures "Patience sitting on a monument, smiling at Grief."

It would have been finer if he had presented it as strong, active, courageous, resolute in fellowship to bear the ills and checks of life with a settled purpose of faithfulness to duty.

Ruskin is more in correspondence with fact when he declares that "the Patience who really smiles at Grief usually stands, or walks, or even runs; she seldom sits." But even this is inadequate. Let us call patience "the King of Virtues," or adopt Tertullian's description and regard it as "God's foster-daughter."

Patience is more than endurance. It is hopefulness made constant by the confidence of faith. It has the ideal in its heart, and knows that what it treasures there will some day become a fact of life, if only men are faithful. Truth, fellowship, loyalty, virtue cannot be manufactured by the ingenuity or ingenuity of men. They must grow, and for this time is necessary; time, with all its contrariant experiences in the dull, sick nights of winter, its stinging winds and cruel cold, as well as in the bright days of spring and the glory of the summer's sun.

Without patience men settle down to no continuous effort. Committing themselves to an enterprise deserving the enthusiasm with which they enter it, when the immediate results are disappointing they slacken effort and abandon their resolution. They will not wait for further developments, and, stricken with the instability of the double-minded, they sink into despair.

But the worst results of impatience are not found in the failure of great and noble work. They are seen in the character of those who have become the victims of its scorn and treachery. Starting by being impatient with the conditions in which they live and work, they end by becoming impatient with themselves. Soon they impute the ineffectiveness of their lives to an ineradicable weakness in their character, for which they are not responsible and against which it is useless to struggle, but on account of which they are forever complaining. They not only blunt the instrument by which alone good work can be done, but go on to assert that the work is impossible.

If you're disappointed with your radio set, read the manufacturer's ad again and see how wonderful it is.

"You do well to boast now," replied Leopold, bitterly, "when I am disgraced before you."

"I speak as a matter of curiosity, not of arrogance," smiled Christian. "Do you think that I am concerned to flourish now? I say I could have bested you, or any other at any task or any game, ay, with any woman either—given fair play, Monseigneur, given fair play. It is no dishonor to lose when one plays with a cheat."

"You prove yourself ignoble by these insults."

"No," answered Christian, quietly, "not insults—merely a comment. What would you, Monseigneur, call one who bought something and paid the price, then, while he was enjoying his purchase, stole behind the other man's back, what he had paid?

Leopold did not answer, nor lower his voice. "And with such circumstances that he covered the man who had honored for him with ignominy, with ridicule," added Christian; then, in a gust of passion: "Where was your fine breeding there, you vaunting fool? You must leave the window open. . . . you must expose her before a blackguard. . . . I had not done it with a slut of the camp. . . . but you, so nice, so squeamish, must make her as public as a drunken trull!"

Leopold could no longer maintain his composure; he put his hand before his eyes and turned away his head.

Christian crossed to the door, opened it, and spoke to the soldier outside. Leopold heard what he said, in that soft, level, steady voice. "Prepare a decent chamber for the Elector of Bavaria, and see that there is some refreshment for him. I believe that the baggage wagons are already up, and there should be some fair service."

"Come and take up your sword, Monseigneur, a little soiled, perhaps, a little foiled, but still, your sword."

He held out the ornate weapon, and Leopold, reluctant, frowning, came and took it and buckled it on with clumsy fingers.

"I am indebted to you for so much courtesy," he flung out.

"Be a little further indebted," smiled Christian; "take up your life, your throne, your Empire. I am satisfied that I could win them all—but they are none of them any value to me."

"I do not understand," faltered Leopold, flushing painfully, gripping the restored sword with nervous fingers.

XXV

THAT night Christian dashed out the brand of his rebellion as violently and indifferently as he had lit it. To his assembled captains he declared ironically that he had served his purpose now, and that they might go home, or continue the war upon their own, as they wished.

The princes and officers whom he addressed were smitten into a fury of confusion.

"I leave to-night, with those few of my personal soldiers, my own Uhlans and Cuirassiers, who choose to follow me; and I ride to Kurland."

"But this," they cried in unison, "is starting madness! Poland, Russia and Prussia alike sit tight in Kurland!"

"It is my country," replied Christian, "and I go to redeem it from the enemy."

A covered dish luncheon was given in the basement of King Hall on Wednesday afternoon by the St. Agnes' Guild. There were about 25 present to partake of the lovely menu which included: hot meat loaf, spaghetti, mashed potatoes, deviled eggs, peas, turnips, various kinds of cold meats, cheese, pickles, creamed cabbage, potato balls, creamed carrots, rolls, coffee, butterscotch pies, coconut cake. The date of the next luncheon will be published at a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bracken accompanied the high school students on their trip to Washington, D. C.

Mrs. William Tomlinson, who makes her home with Mr. and Mrs. William Faulkner, of Bristol Pike, had the misfortune to fall and dislocate her shoulder, Monday, when she slipped on the sidewalk.

Arthur States is able to be around again after being ill for a few days.

Another Chapter is Written In Case to Oust Supervisor

John L. Simons, a Justice of the Peace of New Hope said he had known Mr. Ely forty-five years and never heard his reputation questioned. He stated that Colonel VanOrden, Moore Price, Harry Vasey and two others came to his office and wanted a warrant for the arrest of Mr. Ely on a charge of disorderly conduct but that he refused to issue it. Simons said that the men complained that Ely interfered with a man they had placed on the board to take charge of road work.

Laurie York Erskine, of New Hope, a novelist, writer and school teacher, and a neighbor of Ely said that Mr. Ely's reputation "has been rather notable for his achievements in good road building and that he never heard his honesty or reputation questioned."

Clinton Oblinger, of New Hope, a former Justice of the Peace, testified that since Mr. Ely was on the board the roads have been better than ever before. The witness also stated that in his opinion 70 cents a ton for hauling stone was a fair price from Lamberville to Solebury.

Other well known residents of Solebury who testified as to Supervisor Ely's good reputation were Benjamin Miller, Theodore Natterheiser, George Naylor, Aquetong, Richard Maylor, Aquetong, and Mrs. Henry W. Turner, of New Hope.

Mrs. Hulda Mattison, of Solebury township, who stated she was seventy-four, testified that she taught Supervisor Ely in school and that she never knew him to be dishonest or to hear his reputation questioned. Mrs. Florence Blackfan, of New Hope, was another character witness, as was Mrs. Violet Ewart, of New Hope, and Supervisor Silas Heath.

M. Hubert Walton, of Solebury, stated that Supervisor Ely in his opinion attended to his duties better than any other supervisor ever did.

The prosecution brought against Supervisor Ely some time ago was described by George Ely, of New Hope, a distant relative, as "a community joke in which two factions were involved."

Called as the last witness Supervisor Ely took the stand. He described the accusations of Colonel VanOrden and others as "untrue in every respect." He admitted that he did not attend two recent meetings of the Board because he knew that he would be greatly antagonized by Colonel VanOrden and others.

"They accused me of being a liar and many other things," Supervisor Ely testified. "I never in my life received 15 cents a ton over the price paid William Major for hauling the stone in Solebury township. I did not know at the time that William Major had sublet the contract to haul the stone."

"The Solebury Good Roads Association never came to my assistance in the so-called prosecution against me. I was summoned to appear at the time of arrest but nobody appeared against me. As for R. Moore Price, he was not my best friend as he has testified. Mr. Reckless was my best friend. I know of no effort made by Mr. Price to have the prosecution against me abandoned."

Called by the attorney for the petitioners, R. Moore Price, who testified at the first hearing, yesterday stated that Mr. Ely was stating a mistruth when he says that he (Price) did not try and have the prosecution against him dropped.

"Mr. Ely also knows that I was his best friend in this matter because I considered it a frame-up against him."

The case will now be argued in court for the decision of the judge.

SHAMROCKS CROWNED AS LEAGUE "CHAMPS"

The Shamrocks were crowned champions of the A. O. H. League last night by defeating the Gypsies, 28-17, in a fast game played on the A. O. H. floor.

The "Shamies" take the crown away from the Gypsies who won it last year.

Unlike the other two games which were divided, last night's fray was a walk-away for the "Fats."

Jimmy Lake was the star of the game, scoring six field goals and three out of three fouls, for a total of fifteen points.

Lawler put up a fine game for the losing quintet, but his efforts were to waste, for the rest of his squad could not cope with the winners.

"DYNAMITE" DIAMANTI MAKING GOOD AS COACH

J. A. Diamanti, star athlete of Bristol High in 1922, '23, '24, and later football player and captain of the track team at Muhlenberg College, is making an enviable record for himself as coach of athletics at Wildwood high school, New Jersey. "Dynamite," as he is remembered by many sport followers, is now in his second year of the teaching and coaching game.

The first year at Wildwood his team split better than even, but this year there is a record to be proud of: In football eight games were played, six on the winning column, one loss and one tie. The seashore players won the championship of Cape May County by beating Cape May High to the tune of 23-0, the worst defeat Cape May ever suffered at the hands of Wildwood.

Pleasantville High was beaten for the first time in seven years and four of Coach Diamanti's proteges made the All South Jersey team. In basketball the team won 19 out of 25, winning the South Jersey tournament and reaching the semi-final round of the State tournament. Mr. Diamanti expects to take a course at South Bend Indiana, under Rockne this coming summer.

Burgess Anderson Urges Residents Here to Help In State-Wide Clean-Up

The problem is an entirely individual one.

Perhaps in this class there is no more general need than that of removing conditions which lead to the breeding of flies. Especially is this true with respect to garbage piles and conditions in rural sections. Every effort that is made by citizens to reduce to an irreducible minimum the fly's breeding places is a body blow against filth originating disease.

Public health problems such as water and milk control and the prevention of epidemics are being efficiently handled by the State and local health departments. If in addition to this the citizens will personally and conscientiously cooperate with the department by removing insanitary conditions on their premises, a very definite amount of disease prevention will undoubtedly result.

Department of Welfare

The Department of Welfare says: The Department of Welfare invites the hospitals, homes, almshouses, county prisons, penitentiaries and correctional institutions over which it has supervision to take part in the program for Clean-Up Week, and to carry a message to their respective communities of the benefits derived from a "Real Spring House-Cleaning."

Too much stress cannot be placed upon the value of cleanliness and order at all times, but during this Clean-Up campaign let us look into the out-of-the-way places, remove all rubbish, thoroughly clean the interior of the buildings, and open wide the windows and doors to let in the fresh air and glorious sunshine.

The care of well kept grounds affords a healthful recreation to those in our care or custody and adds much to the property value of an institution.

The psychology of appearance should not be over-looked—neat, clean attendants, patients and inmates, contribute to a feeling of contentment and happiness.

Department of Forests and Waters

The Department of Forests and Waters says:

One of the principal tasks of the Department of Forests and Waters is to make the forests of Pennsylvania as free as possible from forest fires. Each year forest fires start in 2,000 or more places and threaten our woodlands. Almost nine out of every ten of these fires are encountered during the spring fire season. More than three-fourths of them occur in April and May.

Nearly all forest fires are preventable. Tourists, smokers, fishermen and other forest users; brush burning, railroads, and lumbering operations in the forest, are among the principal causes of these fires. The significant lesson is that, with the complete cooperation of the public, forest fires in Pennsylvania may be practically eliminated.

Years of experience with forest fires in the Commonwealth have shown that certain locations and certain forest conditions present unusually serious fire hazards—places where the risk of fire is great. Along our highways and forest roads, along our railroads, and on the borders of clearings, where field and forest meet, favorable conditions exist for fire to start in the woodlands. This is due not only to human travel and activity in such places, but to the litter, underbrush and forest debris that is allowed to accumulate there.

Much may be done in the way of preventing forest fires by cleaning up these hazards. Forest rubbish that invites the spark of danger should be gathered together and destroyed. The usual method is burning. Here again there is danger of the fire spreading, and great caution must be used. Brush burning itself, in one form or another, is a widespread practice resulting in many forest fires. On the farm and home grounds, along the railroad and highway, efficient removal and disposition of forest debris is a substantial civic contribution toward better protected woodlands.

Before we set light to the debris in the back yard, to the slash in the forest, or carelessly flip a cigarette or lighted match out from a car, it might be well if we paused and remembered the historic forest fires of America. It is better to prevent fires than to have to fight them. It is better to have beautiful, thrifty woodlands than idle, ugly acres, marred by the hand of human carelessness or indifference.

The Bureau of Fire Protection, State Police, says:

Wonderful News for Fits Sufferers

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Most stubborn cases of epilepsy have been stopped by new remedy. Thousands of sufferers have been helped. If you have fits write at once to Phenoleptol Company, Box 71 St. Johns Pl. Sta. Brooklyn, N. Y., Dept. 815, for free booklet.—(Adv.)

Many years ago, spring and fall housecleaning meant a week more or less set aside by the housewife for a general clean-up of the entire household.

Today, with modern apparatus, the house is always clean—but in Fire Prevention, "clean up" takes a different meaning. With modern apparatus come additional fire hazards not always understood, but safe when properly used. Often gasoline and kerosene are improperly used in households; electrical wiring placed by other than competent electricians; and, of course, if any refuse has been allowed to accumulate, it should be given attention.

Let us join with the army of home owners in making the week of April 14th a week of intensive effort to bring about that condition which will "make Pennsylvania fireproof."

UPHOLDS FITCH AS STEAMBOAT INVENTOR

Proof that Lieut. John Fitch's commercial steamboat of 1790, the Perseverance, ran almost twice as fast as the speed of Robert Fulton's Clermont seventeen years later, is contained in an open letter to Charles Piez, president of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, made public today by Roscoe Conkling Fitch, a collateral descendant.

The Smithsonian Institution says that Fitch's commercial steamboat of 1788 attained "a speed of over six-miles an hour and, Fitch in 1790 built another boat which attained a speed of EIGHT miles an hour and continued to run on the Delaware River, carrying passengers and freight for three or four months." Contrast this with the performance of Fulton's boat the Clermont, on the Hudson, seventeen years afterward, which occupied thirty-two hours running time, to go a distance of one hundred and fifty miles—about four miles and three quarters an hour—and how great is the triumph of the original inventor, Lieut. Fitch!

Had they started together, over the same course, at the same time, Fitch's boat would have reached Albany fifty-two miles in advance. Fitch had an engine manufactured in America by common blacksmiths, under his own supervision, at a time when the principles and the relative forces of the different parts of the steam engine were almost unknown. Fulton employed an imported engine, built in England, by Boulton and Watt, on their improved principles. Dr. William Thornton, superintendent of the U. S. Patent Office, issued a pamphlet in 1814 in which he proved that Fulton was even indebted to Fitch for the proportions of his vessels, having studied Fitch's plans. A committee of the New York Legislature decided in 1817 that "The steamboats built by Livingston and Fulton were in substance the invention patented to John Fitch in 1791, and Fitch during the term of his patent had the exclusive right to use the same in the United States."

Fulton made big money out of the steamboat because he operated on the Hudson, through a rocky, hilly region where land travel was most difficult and expensive while fair roads connected Philadelphia and Trenton on the Delaware, thus making Fitch's profits negligible. Should the size of the fortune acquired be the only scale to measure success in America?

Lieut. Fitch was a member of the Bristol Lodge, No. 25, F. & A. M. He was a young man of Pennsylvania and on January 4, 1785, became affiliated with the Bristol organization. He was a faithful member and today is noted in the Lodge's history as having operated a steamboat here. His boat of 1790 stopped at Bristol on its regular scheduled trips.

In this modern age of airplanes, fast express trains and automobiles, we can scarcely picture the first pony express which left St. Joseph, Mo., and set out for the then far away Carson Valley in the State of Nevada. After eight and one-half days of travel, the hardy pioneers arrived in Carson Valley, with the first pony express of the United States, on April 12, 1860. Above is pictured the first "express" with its guard as it rumbled into the Carson Valley seventy years ago; (lower) the outline of country between the two States which was covered in eight and one-half days by the pioneer vehicle.

SEA SCOUT WITH BYRD EXPECTED HOME SOON

When the ships of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition arrive in the United States in June, one of the most interesting members will be Sea Scout Paul A. Siple, of Erie, Pa., youngest of the party, who has won highest commendation from Admiral Byrd for the work he has done since the expedition left New York nearly two years ago.

Information to this effect was contained in a letter received by Scout Executive William F. Livermore, Jr., from the National Scout offices in New York.

Sea Scout Siple, who is an Eagle Scout, the highest rank which a scout may obtain, was selected from among thousands of Boy Scouts at the invitation of then Commander Byrd, to be his personal aide. He sailed away from New York on August 25, 1928, the most envied boy in America, with a man-sized job to fill on one of the greatest exploration expeditions of all time. On December 2, 1928, Siple, with the others of the party, said good-bye and left Dunedin, New Zealand, the last port en route to Antarctica.

Much has come back over the radio of what the expedition was doing as a whole, but little concerning any individuals, except the leaders. There have been only a few words, from time to time, of what the Sea Scout was doing during the fourteen bleak months on the ice. Such messages as did come through, however, were all to the effect that Siple had made good splendidly. But it was left for Admiral Byrd to sum up the Sea Scout's accomplishments a few days ago in a radio message to the Boy Scouts of America, as follows:

"Sea Scout Paul A. Siple took up his work in the expedition as a man among men. He stood regular deck watches on ship board and turned himself into an able seaman on a full rigged sailing vessel.

"At the base he was given a dog team to drive and soon learned to handle the dogs like a sourdough and soon went out on the trail. Paul was given the young dogs to train and turned out a most useful team that answered many calls for odd jobs around camp. As zoologist he has worked diligently in getting specimens of Antarctic bird and animal life spending many hours in cleaning and preserving skins. He has also done good work in taking depth soundings in the Bay of Whales, and has been a keen observer on his many pup team trips on the bay ice of animal life and of ice conditions. Along with the rest he has taken his turn at menial tasks such as shoveling snow, house duties, kitchen police and standing night watch. Paul is now on the whaler 'Larsen,' en route to Wellington, in charge of live penguins that we are making an effort to bring back to the States and will rejoin ship in New Zealand."—(Signed) Byrd.

Siple has since returned to Dunedin from Wellington, where he had charge of stowing the penguins aboard the whaler "C. A. Larsen," for the trip to the United States. At Dunedin he was royally welcomed by the Dunedin Boy Scouts, headed by District Commissioner W. F. Meek.

On March 23, "City of New York" weighed anchor with Siple aboard as an able seaman. About April 14, the ship will stop at Papeete, Tahiti, to take on coal and necessary repairs. After a few days at Tahiti, the "City of New York," accompanied by the "Eleanor Bolling," second ship of the expedition, will cross the Pacific to the Panama Canal. This is the longest stretch on the homeward voyage, a distance of 4,500 miles. Arriving at the Canal Zone, Siple will see and be greeted by the first American Scouts and Sea Scouts he has seen in many months. The several Scout troops and two Sea Scout units are already planning a reception in his honor under Major R. A. Wheeler, president, and Scout Commissioner J. A. Klemmer, of the Canal Zone Council, Boy Scouts of America. The final leg of the voyage is a 2,211-mile journey from the Canal Zone to New York.

Tuning in on the Talkies by Walhill

The slightest noise registers in the talkies. One soft job in the studios is trying chairs for squeaks.

The "H" credited to screen queens sometimes turns out to be only "H."

Winnie Lightner, in "Hold Everything," says: "Lip stick is good for curing chaps if you use the flavor they don't like."

Judith Voselli, in "The Love Racket," is a lawful form of screen excitement.

"The Royal Rider," having found the way to not stay on a horse, is now practicing on elephants.

Opposition for the Bride Grant Withers and Loretta Young, the newly-weds, will star together in "The Second Floor Mystery" and Judith Voselli will do some vamping.

Fence-Rail Talkies Farmer Silo says: "My boy in college knows a lot of team songs from the movies and there's not a 'gee,' 'haw' or 'giddyap' in one of 'em."

After a Tough Winter "Spring Is Here" and millions of moths have been found starved to death in girls' bathing suits.

Reading Titles Clear "Careers" in the movies are sometimes not quite.

"Done In Oil" savors of a stock-selling promotion.

"Gun Gospel" is preached in short and snappy sentences.

"The Woman of No Importance" lives under some other roof.

"The Perch of the Devil" was probably the original "poor fish."

Ettie Loder, Viennese vamp, is learning English to speak in Vitaphone Varieties, "Come Easy," but it comes hard.

ANIMAL HINTS

(A bi-weekly paper on game conservation devoted principally to the education of the Boy Scouts in an effort to further their merit study activities.)

By State Game Commission
MORE ABOUT OUR MAMMALS
The MINK, like the Weasel, sometimes kills for the lust of killing and for the blood it may suck from its prey. Since the Mink is an expert swimmer and usually lives along the streams it is not as savage a game destroyer as the Weasel. Its food consists chiefly of fish, frogs, and other aquatic mammals. However, it sometimes captures grouse, rabbits, and poultry. Due to its fur value the Mink is becoming very scarce in most sections of the State.

SKUNK is not usually destructive. Its food consists chiefly of mice, moles, fruit and ground insects. Pheasants, grouse, quail and other ground-nesting birds sometimes suffer by having their eggs taken by Skunks. Young rabbits, before they are able to leave their nests, are sometimes eaten. The Skunk occasionally visits the poultry yard to kill a chicken. It is a valuable fur-bearer and is a friend of the orchardist and farmer, even though it sometimes is an enemy of the sportsman. Scientific investigations show that the good habits of the Skunk as a mouse and insect destroyer far outweigh its destructive habits as a destroyer of game birds and mammals.

The RACCOON is a great game animal, a wonderful fur-bearer, and to a certain extent like the Skunk, a game destroyer. The 'Coon has a varied diet and will eat almost anything from carrion (when hungry) to the choicest table morsel (when it can be secured).

cray fish, frogs and fish when along the stream, and beechnuts, chestnuts, grapes, soft corn and fruits when in the forests or fields. An occasional grouse or rabbit may be killed for fresh meat; often damage is done to the nesting grouse and wild turkeys by robbing their nests of eggs. When hungry, Raccoons sometimes visit the chicken coop, but they only kill what is needed for food.

The OPOSSUM, like the Raccoon, has a varied diet. It eats carrion when hard pressed for food, but usually lives upon reptiles, mice, small mammals, insects and fruits. They eat the eggs of ground nesting birds. Grouse, Quail and pheasants suffer to a certain extent. The Opossum is valuable as a fur-bearer although it is not plentiful in this State.

While the RED or PINE SQUIRREL'S principal food is nuts, acorns, pine cones and berries, it persists in eating the eggs of protected birds and often kills young birds. The Red Squirrel probably does not destroy game birds or game animals. They at times destroy their food by cutting it from the tree before it ripens. Chestnut burrs are sometimes cut from an entire tree before the nuts are colored. These nuts are useless as food for the squirrels.

The GRAY SQUIRREL, like his cousin the Red, lives principally on nuts, berries and fruit. It will not permit many nests of insectivorous birds to go unmolested when they are in close proximity.

While the PORCUPINE cannot be considered a game destroyer it is, nevertheless, a menace to the hunter. The reckless bird dog or hound that may attack this animal usually suffers. The Porcupine is a menace to hunting cabins and destroys valuable timber. It occurs only in the northern part of the State.

The WOOD RAT is to be considered an enemy of game since it destroys the eggs of nesting grouse and other birds that live in the dense forests. The young of smaller mammals are sometimes killed by the Wood Rat. This rat, however, is preyed upon by numerous other noxious mammals and birds of prey. The Wild Cat, fox, weasel and the Great Horned and Barred Owls help to keep its numbers reduced. It is numerous only in a small portion of the State.

Every car above $500 may be viewed in our street-level used car department as usual.

Let it be understood: The bargain basement does not offer undesirable reconditioned automobiles. We have simply segregated the lower-priced automobiles from the higher.

The following cars are representative of the unquestioned bargains we are offering

LAIRD OF LINKS OUT TO WIN BRITISH TOURNEY

By Davis J. Walsh
I. N. S. Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Apr. 12.—If Robert T. Jones, Jr., the laird of the links, doesn't win his first British amateur championship this year, the most surprised man in the world probably will be the competitor he falls to beat, closely followed by ten million others who know golf and play it and love it. Doubtless the least surprised of the lot will be Jones himself. He knows too well the whims and caprices of chance to be impressed by advance with the potentialities of any given man at any time.

Be that as it will, Jones either will win this elusive title in 1930 or die in his spiked brogans. The British amateur championship formerly was an incident to him, just another major tournament in a career that was filled with them. This time, it is an event of paramount importance; a definite challenge to his greatness because it is the only big title that has escaped his trophy bag.

He, therefore, is conducting himself accordingly. Most of Jones' recent winters have been spent, first, in study and later in his law office, with golf occupying an obscure background to the exigent demands of business and family. He averaged less than a dozen rounds of golf through the winter months and often he had to play himself into stroking form in the championship themselves.

He is leaving nothing to chance this time. Everything, in fact, is being checked and certified against the so-called margin of error.

It is only the winter season, for instance, that has seen him play in two open championships, one of which he won by 13 strokes. The other he lost by a stroke to Horton Smith, each bettering par for four rounds by an overwhelming majority. Jones thus has tested his game in the fire of competition and, in consequence, is further along in his preparation at this time than at any corresponding period within the last seven years.

Indeed, those who saw him shoot 279 for seventy-two holes at Savannah and later win the Southeastern open with 284 on a stiff course are convinced that he is better now than ever he was in his life. Barring the unforeseen, this ought to be much too good for anything the British amateur championship may offer.

Of course, Jones is not fool-proof. He can play a bad round in conjunction with an opponent who plays a good one—with the customary results—but it will be difficult to convince the average camp follower of the game that Jones can be beaten out of any title on which he really sets his mind and heart.

He gives that impression, anyhow, even when he is beaten. Johnny Farrell did it at Olympia Fields in the national open two years ago but the innocent bystanders left the premises convinced that Jones could have won that play-off match if he had cared to show a little more enthusiasm and a little less insouciance. Rightly or wrongly, he was suspected of having taken the issue all too casually.

It was the same in Worcester in 1925 when Jones and Willie Macfarlane finished the tournament in a tie and were forced into successive play-off rounds before Macfarlane won.

"I don't care," Jones was quoted as having said when they came to the final tee, still deadlocked in the totals. "I'm going to give this shot everything I have and either win the title or lose it. I won't play another hole."

It is understood to be a matter of record that he lost the title on the shot in question, whereas Macfarlane, being a professional and needing the money, played desperately safe. He did it for the wife and kiddies. To Jones, the title meant no more than glory and his feet were sore. So he tried to end it all with one punch.

He won't have that pressing urge of financial reward in the British amateur, either. He will have even more than that. His inspiration will come from a prestige that has been flouted by at least three defeats in the event and from a thoroughly human ego that won't be appeased until victory is finally his.

FEW BOTTLES OF KONJOLA ENDED 10 YEARS' MISERY

New Medicine Banishes Kidney and Stomach Troubles; Enjoying Real Health Now

MRS. V. B. HICKMAN
"For ten years I suffered tortures from stomach and kidney troubles," said Mrs. V. B. Hickman, 705 Arch street, Northside, Pittsburgh. "Nervousness was an added and painful condition. I did not sleep properly and was terribly run down. The simplest meals produced bloating, belching, heartburn and nausea. Headaches were common and severe. A sluggish liver caused bilious attacks and dizzy spells. Even my kidneys weakened under the strain and I had terrible back aches, frequent bladder actions and weakness."

"Konjola had done so much for my husband that it was not difficult for him to induce me to try this great medicine. It did for me all that it had done for him. In a few weeks after I began the treatment my ailments had disappeared. Today I have an excellent appetite and eat heartily without the least distress. My kidneys are strong and function perfectly without back pains or weak spells. I am no longer bilious and I am free from headaches. I am in excellent health and will never be without Konjola."

Each of Konjola's 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of natural plants, combined with other recognized medicinal elements has a special duty to perform for the ailing organs. All who have given it a fair trial of six to eight bottles, have declared there is no other medicine like it.

Konjola is sold in Bristol, Pa., at Hoffman's Cut Rate Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section. —(Adv.)
